The Sunday Rover services.

The Sunday Rover services were established really in the mid 1990s, it's a network of buses and trains that run around Dartmoor and give access to Dartmoor from Plymouth, Exeter and Torbay. In the late 1990s the railway line between Exeter and Okehampton was re-opened on Sundays to allow people to access Dartmoor from Exeter by train, and also to go to Exeter from Okehampton. From Okehampton you can obviously link into the Meldon Railway line that takes you up to Meldon, but you can also catch buses from there that take you out to Lydford Gorge and to Lydford Castle and also to places like Castle Drogo and really access the whole bus network on Dartmoor.
