

John Bellamy

The river and the community.

So the river is a pretty dominant part of Postbridge isn't it?

Yes, and very much part of all our lives really, I mean both Jack, my grandad and Dad and myself, we always fished the river and anybody living in the shop or where David Cooper lives always has to be careful of when the river floods because that has been known to go in the back door and out the front, but yes, the river's a really important part.