

Tom Soby

The story of William Donaghy (2)

So they smartly went up to Exeter Station to reclaim this and when they presented the ticket the name they gave, William Donaghy, was not recognised; William Donaghy had actually put his luggage under a false name, so they were a little bit anxious of this so when they were given the luggage that he left it was actually a bag and inside the bag was a revolver and there was also some ammunition, which again caused great alarm; however they never actually found out why William had this revolver, why he actually had all this ammunition with him, and so the mystery still remains to this very day.