

David Cooper

A sense of belonging.

I don't know, its just, you just feel so – you can just walk out across the moor and, it's the freedom I think it is really, more than anything else - I just think it's probably something that's in your blood, you know, you're born here and its in your blood and you just want to end your days here really, you feel like you belong.