

Deborah Griffiths

School closure.

When the quarries closed of course there was really no further use for the school and it closed in 1936 and the building remained empty. I think it was used by the American Army as workshops and things during the Second World War and then finally it was demolished in 1964.