

Keith Mckay

A sense of space.

And there are a lot of open spaces here as well?

There are, the special nature of Princetown in its early origins does give that feeling of the moor coming right into the settlement, and until recently the moor did come right into the settlement, we had the ponies wondering around the town, it's a wonderful feel, so man's efforts to try and establish himself here as a settlement but still having to respect what Mother Nature throws at it, has allowed the establishment of a place which has places to live and work in but open spaces for community use and right on their periphery, all around, the open moorland, its wonderful, every view you take as you walk up and down this place, there's the Moor for you, I meant it couldn't be more inspiring in so many ways in fact.