

Lou Rich

The winter of 1963.

I thought it was never going to clear up, I had a Land Rover then but of course you couldn't use it, I think I was the first Land Rover to go out of Princetown, but we were cut off for, oh, I don't know, two months or more. Helicopter used to come in and drop flour here and the Prison used to bake the bread and they'd have a caterpillar tractor and used to take it down the shops.

So the Prison baked the bread and brought it into the shops?

Brought it down to the shops and we used to go down there and buy the bread, and they'd supply the milk as well, because nothing could get through here you see, only had to depend on the helicopter.
