Taking the train to Plymouth

We used to, when you could get a Saturday afternoon off, because you used to work Saturday afternoons an' all at one time, and if you had a Saturday afternoon off you'd catch the 12 o'clock train out here, go down to Plymouth, go out and watch Plymouth Argyle play football, go in the town and have a feed of fish and chips, go down to the Palace and watch the first house show and then catch the train back, I don't know what time it left Plymouth, you'd get back here about half past ten at night – that was a big afternoon out then, back in them days.
