

John Thorp

The medieval door.

It's rounded headed and simply chamfered so its very difficult to date stylistically but in my experience of Devon houses it is often surprising how often the old door remains as if there was some kind of - a kind of almost superstitious thing about the threshold and the old door; it's quite often that the oldest door does survive in old Devon farmhouses.