

Malcolm Whiteside

Description of the room during the 1950s.

That door was never there and the window was smaller and different wasn't it? A lot smaller and we used to have the table along there with a bench in the window, window bench and a couple chairs on the outside and Granddad sat on the end, but then everybody done it like that didn't them? That was the way it was done. And all I can remember was Gran sitting in an old steel one this side, what you call a garden chair, Gran was awkward about things like that, didn't have no comforts, but Granddad had like a nice old armchair, and a packet of spills by the side to light his pipe with.