

Edith Helley

The porch floor.

And that porch there, it used to be a stone porch and Mother never had mats down, like, she'd always put ferns there for you to clean your boots on and that, before you came in; otherwise it was stone, 'cos every Saturday morning you had to scrub the floors – it was cleaner really you know, it was cleaner.